Lowell Bayles Plunges to Death in Attempt to Break Record

MORE THAN 300 M. P. H.
Flames Burst Out After Plane Hits Ground

Detroit, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass., speed flier, was killed at 1 p. m., today when his plane struck the ground and burst into flames while he was making another attempt at the world's land plane speed record.

Bayles, who earlier this week had attained a speed of 251.9 miles an hour in his third attempt at the record, was on the first lap of his fourth attempt. He was about 75 feet up, going at terrific speed over the measured course at the Wayne county airport when suddenly the plane dipped, turned over three times and rumbled into the ground.

Airport attendants expressed the belief that a cross wind had caught Bayles plane as it straightened out after diving for the high speed start of the dash over a 1.8 mile course. The force of the impact hurled the engine and Bayles body, in flames, from the plane.

Bayles came here several weeks ago to try to better the record established in France several years ago by Warrant Officer Bonnet, the French flier's speed was 278.4 miles an hour and to obtain recognition for a new mark Bayles had to better it by 4.97 miles an hour.

In several unofficial trials he was clocked at a speed of more than 300 miles an hour, but the officially timed tests, his highest speed was reached December 1 at 281.9.

Told at the time that he had missed the record by the narrowest of margins, Bayles smiled good naturedly and said: "I'm sort of glad I didn't crack it this time. I think I can do 290 or better if the wind is right and I want to set a good record when I do it. I'm going to keep on trying."

Bayles' ship was a Gee Bee monoplane powered with a Wasp motor. There was no official record of the speed at which Bayles was traveling at the time of the accident, but attendants who had seen his three previous attempts said he was doing faster than in any of the other trials. One pilot estimated the speed at more than 300 miles an hour. "It was like a flash thru the sky," he said.

HOOVER'S RELATIVE IS FREED BY JUDGE

Santa Monica, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Because he did not "willfully and unlawfully possess liquor," C. Van Ness Leavitt, retired plumbing contractor and brother-in-law of President Hoover, was a free man Saturday.

Police Judge C. A. M. Spencer ruled at the end of a trial without jury Friday that the California state liquor law makes it necessary to prove a defendant willfully and unlawfully possessed liquor before a conviction can be obtained.

Leavitt was arrested last Nov. 9 when he allegedly stepped from a grocery store with a gunny sack containing 19 pints of liquor. He said the sack was handed to him by the store proprietor when word reached the store that police raiders were in the neighborhood. The proprietor, C. R. Dalley, had once been convicted of bootlegging.

Germany's Fascist Leader Says Country Cannot Pay Reparations and Commercial Debts—
Cancellation Seen in Background

Berlin, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler, young Austrian leader of Germany's Nationalist Right, believes his regime will control Germany soon and promises that when it does, American bondholders need have no fear for their investments unless payment of reparations is also demanded.

Dressed in a well-fitting black business suit, the Fascist leader told foreign newspapermen that to pay 2,500,000,000 marks in German reparations claims as well as 2,500,000,000 in interest on debts would "spell economic chaos, not only for Germany but likewise for foreign countries."

"If France's thesis is accepted," he said, "and the world acknowledges that political debts take priority over commercial debts, then Germany will collapse economically and there obviously will be nothing from which to meet commercial obligations."

He was asked if it was fair to assume that he favors payment of commercial debts in the event his regime goes into power, assuming commercial debts are given priority over political debts.

"That is self-evident," he said, driving home every syllable with a forceful gesture. "There is no doubt about it but do decline to assume for 60 years the obligation to pay political debts for which we cannot be responsible."

Germany's position, under his regime, he said, would be that it is necessary to acquire the world with her real condition—"the absolute, undiluted truth."

Hitler's attitude throughout was that of a man conscious of coming into his own. "We are about to take over the power," he said. "It is a question merely of months—perhaps even weeks."

Increased exports to Germany, the United Kingdom, China and Japan brought the American favorable foreign trade balance in October to $36,297,542.

The Department of Commerce, announcing revised figures for exports and imports by grand divisions and principal countries, said today exports during October were 204,994,233 and imports $165,706,691. During October 1930 exports totaled $326,896,092 and imports $247,367,153.

The favorable trade balance has been climbing steadily during the last three months. An unfavorable balance was recorded in August. Germany's purchases from the United States jumped $5,000,000 in October as compared with September. The Reich took $17,352,152 worth of American goods as compared with $12,837,132 in September.

The United Kingdom received $50,559,335 of shipments against $34,589,023 in September; China took $10,418,508 against $8,933,313; and Japan took $13,131,111 against $12,370,034.

BURDEN IN DEATH

Parkburg, W. Va., Dec. 5.—(AP)—A former officer and three employees of the closed "Wood county bank were arrested today upon charges of embezzling approximately $100,000 of bank funds.

The warrant against James Fleming, former trust officer and cashier, charged him with embezzling $30,259 from January 1928, to June 1931, and a joint warrant against R. C. Ward, Harley Cline and John Farris, charged them with embezzling $77,996 during the same period.

The warrants were sworn out upon complaint of Edward Nelly, president of the bank. The four men posted $2,000 bond each for grand action in January.

WOMAN CAPTURES THIEF IN HOTEL

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. O. E. Johnson, New York, guest at a downtown hotel, turned detective last night and caused the arrest of a man she alleged broke into her room.

The man, registered as Harry E. McVicker, 42, Bedford, Pa., was held for investigation after police said he admitted serving four years in Atlanta federal penitentiary for grand larceny.

Mrs. Johnson said she thought a man left her room as she got off an elevator and when she entered the room discovered her jewel box had been disturbed but nothing taken from it. She raced down a hallway and accosted McVicker, forcing him to return and show her which room he had visited. The woman then called hotel detectives.

DRY ISSUE FOREMOST

Seating of Alabama Senator Is Problem

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—With an eye on a fast start, party groups and blocs in Congress today speeded final preparations for Monday's opening of a momentous session.

Without a ripple of dissension, House Democrats today selected Garner of Texas and Rainey of Illinois as their candidates for speaker and leader, respectively.

There was no opposition to either and the placing in nomination of the names of the southerner and northerner loosed a flood of oratory by their friends. Each was chosen by a loud chorus of ayes.

The election of Rainey was assured by the withdrawal several days ago of O'Connor of New York and McDuffie of Alabama, along with the other contenders. Both O'Connor and McDuffie, in behalf of party harmony, seconded his nomination today.

Only one of the 219 House Democrats was absent as they pushed ahead with the selection of candidates for the remaining House posts and the settlement of the one remaining major point of dispute before the caucus—decision whether there shall be a liberalization of the House.

They began preparing also with their Senate colleagues a broad legislative program, which they hope to make a pre-convention platform laying before the people of the country the party's ideas for economic betterment.

Senate Republicans, organized yesterday without aid of their independent element, were confident of controlling their chamber by virtue of majority, despite internal friction over the president's program.

Prohibition vote advocates threw their weight behind the generally supported loosening of House Rules, while the group of independent, Republican and Democrat and Farm Labor, pledged itself to support the most liberal program of reform.

A section of the Senate Republicans settled down to decide whether to try reducing the Democratic contingent by barring John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, whose seat is contested.

Gathering in the House Chamber where early in the week the Republicans chose their leaders first on the caucus program. Rules were next for attention with an almost certain approval of a liberal program.

CLARA CRASHES INTO PRINT AGAIN AS HER MARRIAGE TO REX BELL IS NOISED AROUND

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 5.—(AP)—A ceremony on which Clara Bow, red haired film star, reputedly became the bride of Rex Bell, her actor-suitor, was the subject of conflicting reports today.

Bell, on whose ranch Miss Bow has been in seclusion several months to regain her health, denied they were married. Harley Harmon, district attorney here, and William Schuyler, deputy county clerk, declared they were witnesses to the wedding ceremony.

District Judge Orr, named as performing the ceremony, would neither affirm nor deny. The judge, who has married many Hollywood celebrities, said he did not wish to discuss the matter.

The wedding, according to Harmon and Schuyler, took place Thursday night. A marriage license was obtained by Miss Bow and Bell a short time previously, Schuyler said. The actress gave her age as 28 and Bell his as 28.

In denying he and Miss Bow were married, Bell intimated announcement of a wedding might endanger certain contracts the actress has. Miss Bow is expected to return to Hollywood about January 1, to re-enter pictures.

Immediately after the ceremony, Bell and Miss Bow left for the former's ranch, on the desert, 60 miles from here.

Great-Aunt To Sell Royal Jewels So Alfonso's Daughter May Wed

Paris, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Behind the gray walls of a Paris convent-pension the Infanta Eulalia, daughter of one of the queens of Spain, is preparing to sell the jewels given her on her own wedding day to provide a dowry for the love-match of an exiled Spanish princess.

Diamonds, emeralds and pearls which once gleamed from the throats and hair of two Spanish queens are to be taken from dust-covered iron-bound strong boxes and sold to facilitate the marriage of the infant's grandson, Prince Alvaro d'Orleans and her great-niece, Princess Beatrice, eldest daughter of Alfonso, former king of Spain.

"This is a love match," she says. "These children love each other dearly. They were engaged, though not officially, before the fall of the Spanish monarchy. Now they are heartbroken because there is no money for their marriage."

"The king says there is no money for a marriage and a 'dot' now, and that they must wait until 'affairs are more settled.' The little princess has sobbed on my shoulder."

"My grandson writes me frantic letters from Zurich where he is in school. They both beg 'Help us out, Grandmamma. Nobody else will.' And so it's up to me. I haven't anything left but my jewels, but I'm giving those."

The jewels which she is preparing to sell, once the envy of the court ladies of Madrid, are said to be among the most beautiful in the world.

There are the emeralds, a large talaria and necklace, given to the Infanta Eulalia by her mother, Queen

TOBACCO FARMERS RENEW REBELLION

Franklin and Russellville were the only dark leaf markets opening this week, where any sales were completed.

Rejections were numerous at both places, however.

Prices on all markets opening this week averaged around $4 per hundred pounds, as compared to approximately $8 last year.

NEGRO LYNCHED

Body Then Cut Down
from Tree in Courthouse
Yard and Burned

Salisbury, Md., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Wicomico county officials conferred today on what action would be taken in connection with the lynching last night of Mack Williams, 35 year old negro, who was taken from a hospital cot and hanged in the courthouse yard a few hours after he had slain his employer, Daniel J. Elliott.

After hanging Williams the crowd burned his body at the edge of the negro district.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie cut short a visit to New York and started for Baltimore to conduct an investigation.

The lynch spirit flamed a short time before the actual attempt when it was learned Williams had not died, as first reported, from wounds inflicted by himself and by Daniel C. Elliott, Jr., son of the slain man.

Men standing on a street corner, discussing the killing of Elliott, 67 year old lumber dealer and box manufacturer, raised a cry of "lets lynch Williams," and it was taken up by others as the march to the hospital started.

When the mob reached the building, a delegation of six repulsed at the front by Police Chief N. H. Holland and Deputy Sheriff John Parks, entered a side door and dragged the negro from his cot.

He was taken by the mob to the courthouse and hanged from a tree and left swinging for 20 minutes before his body was cut down and burned.

Williams is said to have admitted to State's Attorney Levin Bailey that he shot his employer because of the low wages paid him. He entered the lumberman's office while he was alone and shot him through the head, killing him almost instantly. He then wounded himself.

REPUBLICAN WOMAN IN POLITICAL FIGHT

TWO CLAIM PRESIDENCY AS RESULT OF STORMY
SESSION OVER ORGANIZATION

Columbus, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Just who is president of the Women's Republican club of Ohio probably will not be determined for some time.

Today two former State Representatives, Mrs. Viola D. Romans and Mrs. Emma P. Valentine, both of Columbus, claimed the honor. Mrs. Valentine said she was elected president before a meeting here last night, was adjourned by Mrs. Romans because of disorder. Mrs. Romans said no election was held and that she remains president.

A patrolman assigned to the meeting was not called upon for assistance, although threats were made to bring him into service. Discussion on the minutes of November's meeting grew heated as Mrs. Romans interjected: "We have an officer in the house. We may call him."

After Mrs. Romans read her version of what happened at the November meeting more discussion and hissing ensued. She had to threaten to stop the meeting, to stop the hissing.

The next meeting will be held in January.

MORTGAGE CO. CASE ENDS IN CONVICTION

Cleveland, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Three former officials of the Defunct Union Mortgage Company, a $30,000,000 concern which went into receivership in 1928, were convicted last night on a charge of misrepresenting facts in connection with the sale of partial payment bonds.

The jury of six men and six women returned its verdict more than 53 hours after it received the case Wednesday.

Wheat Price Increased On Hogs' Bill Of Fare

Brumley grows wheat and raises hogs, and has been feeding hogs for market many years. He produced 20,000 bushels of wheat and 15,000 bushels of barley this year, and is feeding the grain to 1,400 head of hogs.

With hogs selling locally for seven cents a pound, he says he is realizing around 70 cents a bushel for his wheat.

Japanese Troops Beyond
Control, Is Fear

Paris, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese representative, told leaders of the council of the League of Nations today that China will not evacuate Chinchow but will "fight and die there if necessary."

The Japanese position was reiterated by Nobumi Ito, Japanese legal expert, who declared to the council's drafting committee that his nation was unalterably opposed to intervention by a third party in the Manchurian quarrel either through a commission of inquiry or through neutral observers.

Those who heard M. Ito said it was their impression Japan was determined to get the Chinese military and perhaps civil government out of Chinchow and behind the great wall of China.

Nanking, China, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Dr. Wellington Koo, who became Foreign Minister of China last week, and Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, resigned today.

President Chiang Kai-Shek sent a telegram to Dr. Sze in Paris, urging him to consider and assuring him the Chinese government was firmly behind him.

The president also saw Dr. Koo and requested him to remain as Foreign Minister, but it was believed Dr. Koo would make his resignation effective tomorrow.

The two resignations came within a few hours and greatly surprised the capital.

Tokyo, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Fears that the Japanese civil government might not be able to keep the army in Manchuria in check were expressed by a foreign office spokesman today, conditioned on what he said was the failure of the Chinese to withdraw their troops from the Chinchow area after the Japanese halted their advance November 27.

The announcement followed the receipt of press dispatches from Nanking indicating China rejected the plan to establish a neutral zone at Chinchow. The reports said the Nanking government contended the

The Week's Attraction At Washington's Theatres

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in "Possessed" at the Fayette Sunday and Monday.

Nancy Carroll, Gene Raymond in a scene from the Paramount Picture "Personal Maid". Pat O'Brien also in the cast. At the Fayette Tuesday and Wednesday.

His advances having failed Lionel Barrymore resorts to threats of exposure to win the affections of Elissa Landi in the Fox drama, "The Yellow Ticket," at the Fayette next Thursday and Friday.

Step right up and meet Mrs. Cagney's red headed wonder, Jimmie and Mrs. Blondell's precocious Joan. They both may be seen at the Fayette theater next Saturday in "Blonde Crazy."

FAYETTE
Joan Crawford with the screen's most popular leading man, Clark Gable, will be seen Sunday, Monday at the Fayette Theater in "Possessed," highly dramatic story of a factory girl who rebelling against an environment of drab poverty, ends up on Park Avenue, to find that wealth and happiness do not necessarily go hand in hand. The picture was adapted from the Edgar Selwyn stage play, "The Mirage," in which Florence Reed created a sensation a few years ago. As the box-factory employee who gives up a small-town lover to become the mistress of a New York politician, Miss Crawford is said to have her strongest talkie role to date.

Wallace Ford, popular New York stage player, makes his screen debut in the picture as the small-town lover and important roles are filled by the amusing Skeets Gallagher, Frank Conroy, Marjorie White, John Miljan and Clara Blandick. In her newest production, Miss Crawford was directed by Clarence Brown, who achieved such outstanding results with Norma Shearer's "A Free Soul" and a long list of Greta Garbo vehicles including "Inspiration" and "Anna Christie."

Nancy Carroll, in the title role of the Fayette Theater feature for the middle part of the week, "Personal Maid," has a part which lends itself readily to her sparkling personality. The picture, made from the best-seller novel by Grace Perkins, was directed by Monta Bell with a well-known cast of stage and screen favorites supporting Miss Carroll.

"Personal Maid" portrays the experiences of a pretty maid in a home of wealth, and her adventures when the masquerades as "a lady" herself.

The cast includes Pat O'Brien, well-known on the Broadway stage, and the young Gene Raymond. George Fawcett has an interesting character role, and so has Mary Boland.

The cast of "The Yellow Ticket," the much heralded Fox drama, which opens its local engagement at the Fayette Theater next Thursday to some degree resembles a page from Burke's Peerage.

Elissa Landi, who portrays the stellar role, is a daughter of royalty, her mother being the Countess Zonardi-Landi of Austria, a fact that the glamorous Miss Landi modestly managed to conceal until recently.

Another descendant of royalty is John LaRoc, who plays an important role in the dramatic photoplay. She is a direct descendant of Mary, Queen of Scots, and daughter of a member of the Royal Family of England.

And to go on Lionel Barrymore, who enacts the leading male role, is a member of the Royal Family of Broadway, while Laurence Olivier, also featured, comes of aristocratic English parentage.

"The Yellow Ticket" is a Raoul Walsh production and was adapted for the screen from Michael Morton's internationally popular stage play by Jules Furthman and Guy Bolton.

"Blonde Crazy," the Warner Bros. picture, featuring James Cagney and Joan Blondell, will be at the Fayette Theater next Saturday is dominated by the ladies that gentlemen are said to prefer. Joan Blondell, the globe-trotting charmer of stage and screen, is in her element as Ann the linen girl, who—even though he claims she does not—catches the fancy of Bert the bell-hop. It is this infatuation for her that changes the course of her life. Through him she enters the doubtful business of trying to cheat cheaters. She, through him, meets the swanky bond salesman, whom she marries and divorces. And it is for Joan's sake that Bert the bell-hop makes his one actual theft—for which he suffers in the end.

Another gorgeous blonde in "Blonde Crazy" is Noel Francis, formerly of the Follies.

PALACE

Mirthful mystery that is genuinely amusing and entertaining is offered in "A Dangerous Affair," the new Columbia Holt-Graves vehicle at the Palace, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

It serves as a splendid vehicle for the return to the screen in co-starring roles of Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, who have not appeared together since they completed "Diploma." Again they demonstrate what a grand team they are—they are perfect foils for each other. Their current picture is done in a much lighter vein than previous ones and it serves as an ideal vehicle for the dry humor of Jack Holt, who plays the part of a small town police lieutenant, and the wise-cracking patter of Ralph Graves, who is cast as a charming, lazy but capable newspaper reporter. They manage to keep the audience in rare good humor.

Character portrayals are superbly handled by Blanche Friderici, William V. Mong, Tyler Brooke, Susan Fleming and Frederic Sanley. Each one is a masterpiece in caricature. Sally Blane makes an appealing and beautiful heroine. She reveals herself as a light comedienne par excellence and shows indications of establishing herself as one of the screen's prime favorites.

The demand for melodramatic thrills is just as strong today as it was fifty years ago when audiences wept in sympathy with the "Two Orphans," or gloriied in the perilous adventures of "The Count of Monte Cristo." Put in 1931 mawkish sentiment is taboo. Movies must be modern in theme and character thoroughly human.

"The Lightning Flyer," Columbia's new feature which comes to the Palace Theater on Wednesday and Thursday, features swift melodrama and adventure, done in the modern manner. It is an action film silhouetted against the background of railroad life.

James Hall impersonates the hero and the girl is portrayed by Dorothy Sebastian.

GEM

"The Bargain," the latest First National production and the Gem's attraction to Sunday and Monday, has won a mark of approval at every showing. Fandora is not the first group of citizens to put the mark of approval on this story. Under the name of "You and I" it won the coveted Pulitzer prize, and had a long run on the Broadway stage. It is the work of Philip Barry, who has written so many successes, and whose "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" is one of the big current hits along the Great White Way.

The characters are so real as to seem to be lifelong acquaintances. First there are Maitland and Nancy White and their grown son, Ricky, whom they mean to send to Paris to continue the study of architecture in which he has shown interest and ability.

The fine cast features Lewis Stone, Evelyn Knapp, Charles Butterworth, Boris Kenyon, John Darrow, Oscar Apfel, Una Merkel and Nella Walker, Robert Milton directed with fine understanding.

"Take the whole family for the treat of their lives—"The Bargain".

"The Lawless Woman," the new Chesterfield all-talking drama show, at the Gem, Tuesday and Wednesday, is an interesting combination of two popular types of screen stories, the newspaper story and the gangster yarn. Arthur Hoerik, the author, has done a clever job in developing his theme, and Barney Berard has provided a fine continuity and dialogue. The cast, really an all-star one, includes Vera Reynolds, Carroll Nye, Thomas E. Jackson, Wheeler Oakman, Gwae Leo, James Burtis and Phillips Smiley.

SLOT MACHINES ARE TAKEN OUT

Following Official Hint of General Raid

A truck load of slot machines was hauled from the city Friday evening, so that at the present time the city is about as free from the devices, which come under the classification of gambling, as it has been during the present administration.

The slot machines had been in operation in some of the restaurants, pool rooms, and other places of business, and recently had greatly increased in numbers.

Following a raid on the slot machines in the rural districts by Sheriff Minton, a short time ago, and rumors that a general police raid had been planned here, the slot machines were turned to the wall for a short time, but will later put in full operation once more.

The removal of the gambling devices is said to have followed recent official inquiry regarding them, and the owners of which, one of whom resided at Williamsport, one at Lynchburg, and another at Wilmington, had been in the city to consult some of the officials.

Whether the removal was due directly to fear of a raid by Sheriff Minton, who recently seized many of the machines in the rural district warning from Prosecutor McLean; word from incoming mayor George Worrell, or fear of a sudden police raid, which had been planned a short time ago, was not indicated.

It is expected that with the change of administration due January 1st that it will be many a day before the slot machines come back to this city.

ciation held at the Deshler-Wallack Hotel during Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Deputy Price had been vice president of the association the past year, and when the time for choosing a new president arrived, he was quickly nominated and elected.

The session this year was pronounced the most interesting of any held by the sealers, and the three days held much of importance to all sealers.

During the same time the sealers were in convention, the State Auditors Association was also in convention at the Deshler-Wallack, and the meetings were attended by Auditor Walter Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, the latter deputy auditor.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Toys this season, more than ever, are composed of things that make up the grown-up world. Because, said several toy department heads, modern youngsters are sophisticated and increasingly exactly like the real ones they are.

"They want their toy trolleys, cars, boats and airplanes," said one buyer in appraising the toys. "They want a car that is in the market for a pedal as the last word in toy automobiles being models copied and named after adult cars."

The salesman rolled out several autos, but the particular model was not in stock, and the young prospect declined to be interested in any other.

Over in the dolls' ready-to-wear department in a large State Street store—the latest styles in children's clothes are duplicated in dolls' clothes.

A blonde tot, whose head did not reach the top of the glass counter, inspected some tiny doll shoes.

"I want those shoes, Mama. The shiny ones. Just like your good shoes," commented this fashion-wise Miss.

Among the season's new models is the four-day-old baby doll. It comes—sometimes it's twins—wrapped in a blanket.

The doll furniture departments have replenished their stocks until it is possible to obtain any household object desired from the kitchen clock to a grand piano in any size.

HEALTH BOARDS HOLD MEETING

Re-employ Health Commissioner and Clerks

At a combined meeting of the city and county health boards, held Friday afternoon, Health Commissioner, Dr. Jas. F. Wilson and his assistants were re-employed for another year at the same salary.

Representatives of the Taxpayers League were present and welcomed by the Boards. In response to questions by these men they were shown how the Boards had watched expenses and how expenses had been cut at least $1500 in 1931 under 1930 and at a time when if anything, the work of Boards of Health is increased.

Miss Gaut, Health Nurse has been on the payroll of U. S. Public Health Service since August 15, 1931 and her services were continued on this payroll for the 1st of 1932 and longer if this source of pay is continued by the Federal Government another year, as it is expected to be.

SLOT MACHINES TAKEN BY POLICE

Chief of Police Jack Wolfe Saturday afternoon seized two slot machines, owned by a Columbus firm, which were not removed from the city Friday evening.

The two machines are said to have been about all that remained after the owners hurriedly collected their alleged gambling devices late Friday.

It is understood that Mayor Curtin had issued the word that slot machines were not to be disturbed in the city, and the general scare and rush to get the machines out seems to have come when county authorities took cognizance of the presence of the devices.

AGED VETERAN HIT BY TRUCK

A. C. Vince Is Badly Injured Saturday

A. C. Vince, aged about 88 years, veteran of the Civil war, was struck by a Standard Oil Company truck, at the Court and Fayette street crossing, shortly before noon Saturday, and severely injured.

Vince was crossing from the Barchet corner to the Gossard corner apparently not noticing the light had changed, and the oil truck was headed south in Fayette street, striking the aged man at the sidewalk line in the street, and throwing him violently to the street.

The driver of the truck had the truck under complete control, however, and brought it to stop instantly.

Persons near the scene at the time rushed to the aid of Vince, assisted him to his feet, and he was taken in charge by Dr. J. M. Harsha who, dressed his bruises and X-rayed him for a possible fracture of one leg.

The X-ray picture showed no fractures, but the ligaments of one leg were badly injured, and may confine Vince to his home for many weeks.

CONGRESS ORGANIZED TO START SESSION

The caucus was a proposal to create a steering committee, which would increase the leadership group from two or three to eleven.

The caucus also had to elect six members of the Ways and Means committee, a House clerk to replace Republicans, William Tyler, page, a sergeant at arms, doorkeeper and other minor officers.

Jumping the gun, hundreds of members of both House and Senate have already filed with their clerks about 5,000 bills on every imaginable topic.

W. C. T. U. CONFIDENT.

A forecast that wets in the coming Congress would get nowhere in actual enactment of laws against prohibition was pronounced today before the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Dr. Isora Scott, who keeps her finger on the pulse of prohibition in the capital, lined up the prospects in an exceedingly frank discussion for a regional rally of white-ribboners.

She predicts slight gains of support for a bill to make the buyers equally guilty with the seller of liquor, and announced the author, Senator Sheppard of Texas, "is not likely to lead an aggressive fight for the measure."

"In fact, the friends of prohibition believe," she revealed, "that we have enough law if we could get the people to observe the spirit of the eighteenth amendment. In such an event, we should not have need of punishing the buyer, and there would be no seller, if there were no demand for the drug."

Dr. Scott called for a tightened padlock law and proposed authorization of access to wholesale and retail industrial alcohol dealers' promises to facilitate tracing shipments.

All the bills wet introduced last year she "suspected" would be re-introduced.

The mere matter of $1,531 may possibly prevent John H. Bankhead from taking his seat as United States senator from Alabama.

A senate elections subcommittee faced today the problem of deciding whether campaign expenditures of $11,531 by Bankhead, when the Alabama state law fixes a maximum of $10,000, disqualifies him from taking the oath. The Republican forces may seek to use this issue to bar him Monday.

The question has been raised by former Senator Heflin, the picturesque campaigner, who was defeated by Bankhead in the 1930 elections and is now contesting. Heflin's attorneys argued the point for more than three hours before the committee yesterday and Bankhead's lawyer was given time to reply today.

The report of a senate investigator charging corrupt use of money in the election of Senator Bankhead, was filed today with a senate elections sub-committee.

Prepared by P. L. Aarhus, investigator for the senate campaign expenditures committee, it was presented by Horace Wilkinson, attorney for former Senator Heflin, who is contesting Bankhead's election.

The report went on record shortly after former Senator Heflin, who is contesting the seat, sent a letter to all Democratic senators, asking their support for his contention that Bankhead should stand aside until the elections committee reported.

Wilkinson offered the document as the sub-committee in charge of the contest continued its hearing of arguments that Bankhead exceeded the limit of expenditures fixed by Alabama law.

Aarhus said he was prepared to present evidence of "almost universal violation of election laws and almost equally gross financial corruption" in the election.

He charged violation of 26 sections of the Alabama law, including the buying and selling of votes.

Senator George, of Georgia, a Democratic member of the committee, said the letter did not constitute legal evidence and asserted he would not accept the conclusions without cross examination of the investigator.

The Handbill Nuisance

Every home owner and business man resident of Washington C. H. hopes that council will soon take long delayed action and enact an ordinance putting an end to the littering up of the streets and door yards with handbills, posters and pamphlets.

It is discouraging to home owners, who take pride in keeping their premises neat and clean to have them constantly littered with paper scattered about by non-residents. It is unfair to home business men who are taxed to keep streets and sidewalks clean to have truckloads of paper scattered about to be cleaned up.

The annoyance has grown and it will continue to grow until action is taken to abate the nuisance.

Almost every other progressive community in the state has taken measures to protect its business men and citizens except this one and just why we delay is a little difficult for men who keep the city going to understand.

Clever Japs

Things have progressed to that stage in Manchuria, as Japan wages her war that is not a war, where the handwriting on the wall grows distinct for even the casual reader. Japan is showing her hand in spite of her guile, and protestations of innocence.

Korea's history is repeating itself in Manchuria. Japan annexed Korea after making a treaty with her to respect her independence. The Nipponese seem now to be maneuvering to annex Manchuria in violation of her nine-power treaty with the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Portugal and China, in which she promised to respect the territorial integrity of China.

The Japs will not grab Manchuria and run. Their method isn't as obvious as that. Japan will create in Manchuria a government overtly for the restoration of order and protection of her nationals but covertly friendly to Japan. After that will naturally follow Japanese making it a part of Japan.

Preventing Colds

Recognized authorities on such things as colds advise women to wear less clothing in order to be more healthy and thus to be able to resist cold germs.

The trouble seems to come when women insist on wearing their furs indoors. They became overheated while shopping or calling and then go outdoors to become chilled.

This warning may well apply to both sexes. Men are perhaps more guilty than women of wearing overcoats in superheated office buildings, although they may plead innocent to the charge of wearing more than one pair of socks at a time, a custom now common among the ladies.

The slight perspiration caused by too much clothing indoors is responsible for more people taking cold than may be realized. Many overcoats are so heavy that it is actually easier to keep them on than to take them off.

Coining New Words

Every new invention and each newly discovered branch of human knowledge involves additions to our vocabulary. The automobile and the airplane contributed divers new and strange words to the English language, many of which have been so generally adopted that their permanence is virtually assured.

This is not always the case, however, with the laboriously fabricated words devised by entomologists as more accurately fitting the thing or the principle described. The people have a way of discriminating in such matters, and it often happens that the better form, orthographically, is neglected for the more spontaneous and popular. A naval air pilot is objecting just now to the use of the term navigator to the individual who directs the course of an airship and suggests that avigator and avigation would be more accurate and appropriate.

This may well be, but the public will decide, not the navy or the lexicographers. Which reminds us—what are we going to use for dictionaries.

CURTIS WILL MAKE THE RACE WITH HOOVER

Question Is Did He Think National Ticket Would Win or That He'd Be Defeated For Senator

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Dec. 5.—The decision of Charles Curtis to run for vice president again, if the Republicans renominate him, as in all probability they will, can be, and is, interpreted in two entirely different ways.

Charles Curtis

Months ago it leaked out that Curtis was uncertain whether to seek a second term in his present office or announce his 1932 candidacy for his old senate seat. It is no secret on Capitol Hill that Curtis likes the vice presidency. It pays $15,000 to a senator's $10,000 and Curtis is dependent on his salary.

The initiated immediately concluded that Curtis was skeptical of a G. O. P. national victory next year. In cognizant circles the prediction was freely made that if Curtis overcame these qualms, he finally would ask a renomination; otherwise, that 1932 would find him campaigning for his former toga. In opposition to George McGill, whose Democratic senatorial tenure will end in 1933.

The Sunflower State being normally strongly Republican, and Curtis very popular there, it was the consensus (at that time) that defeating McGill would be, for Curtis, like taking candy from a baby—regardless of the rival national tickets.

Now, Vice President Curtis is regarded by politicians as one of the ablest guessers in the country as to prospective tendencies on the part of the voters.

Consequently the outcome of his deliberations, in a matter so intimately concerning his own welfare as to leave no doubt that he would exercise his level best judgment, was awaited in Washington with downright breathless interest.

Had he announced his senate candidacy, waiving the vice presidency, the inference inevitably would have been that he deemed the Republican national ticket's chances too dubious to stake his individual fortunes on.

His choice, instead, of a vice presidential renomination naturally is regarded as a plain indication that, after careful investigation (and it undeniably has been thorough), he is satisfied of the groundlessness of his earlier fears and no longer hesitates to proceed with the national procession.

Such is the first of the two interpretations placed upon the Kansan's recent declaration of his readiness to accept second place on his party's presidential ticket if it is offered to him again.

The other is that, having gone over the Kansas prairies with a fine-tooth comb, he is hopeless of carrying the state even senatorial.

World to Hear Bells

The famous bells of St. Peter's church in Rome will be heard throughout the world, Tuesday, Dec. 8. A recital of selections played on the historic chimes, now electrically operated, will be broadcast at 6 a. m., eastern time (five o'clock central time) on that date.

It is an interpretation not without some plausibility.

Kansas certainly did go Democratic, gubernatorial and senatorially, at its last election.

Conditions look as if they might be much the same in 1932.

If he questions his ability to carry his own state, it is understandable that Curtis would view it as less humiliating to meet defeat on a ticket which he could fairly describe as having pulled him down with it.

His senatorial defeat would be personal.

Interpretation No. 1 is the one which the vice president indorses—of course.

He ought to know, but sometimes politicians do not tell all they know.

Perhaps, too, interpretation No. 1 has rather more to recommend it, in point of probability, than interpretation No. 2.

Nevertheless, No. 2 has its exponents, who swear by it.

Anyway, it is well to be informed that authorities differ concerning the interpretation of so important a document as Vice President Curtis' announcement of his candidacy, and to understand what each side argues.

Comment by supporters of the administration relative to the vice presidential statement is rather mixed.

President Hoover's friends, as might be expected, accept interpretation No. 1 in its entirety, and, as likewise might be expected, are pleased at the implication that Curtis foresees an administration triumph next year.

At the same time, it evidently is hard for them to forget that, during the Republican pre-convention period in 1928, Curtis toured the country widely, repeating, at every whistling post, "Let us not nominate a candidate (meaning Mr. Hoover) for whom we shall have to apologize."

Administrationists have said quite frequently in recent months, in fact, that perhaps a younger man than Curtis would make a better running mate for Mr. Hoover in 1932.

Secretary of War Harley, for example, is younger, and so is young "Teddy" Roosevelt—and a good many others.

Nevertheless, administration folk did not exactly want Curtis to quit in a fashion to give the impression that he considered he was leaving a sinking ship.

The happiest solution, maybe, would be to get rid of him now—after he has given the idea that he does not think it is sinking.

But that will be difficult.

Poetry For Today

THE MAN FOR THE HOUR
"What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

The man for the hour is cheerful, and strong.

And afraid of nothing but sin; With head erect, in the midst of the throng.

If fully determined to win: Nor is he composed of timber that bends

To the cunning schemes of pre-tending friends!

The man for the hour must have a clear head,

With knowledge enough to be wise—

Living in a life that is easily read,

Because it is free from disguise:

With lots of good sense, and stiff backbone,

Will stand for the right, though he stands alone!

The man of the hour will readily see

That it does not pay to go wrong;

And, true to himself, his conscience will be

His guide, as he presses along: Nor will he indulge in alibis thin

To cover his own, or another's, sin!

The man for the hour must not be Ashamed

To do what he knows to be right;

Though misunderstood, and often-times blamed,

Will never surrender the fight—Reminding himself, with emphasis bold:

"My soul is worth more than any man's gold!"

High Spots In Ohio History

"Sunset" Cox spent one winter in Spain and wrote an interesting story of his travels under the title, "A Search for Winter Sunbeams."

While resting at the old Spanish town of Toledo he drew an interesting comparison between it and the Toledo in our own state, and accompanied it with a humorous reference to the Ohio-Michigan war which involved Toledo. He wrote:

"Old Toledo was the subject of many a fray, bloody and bitter as our Maumee Valley war, when Mad Anthony Wayne waged his Indian warfare, and as New Toledo was when as disputed ground in the Wolverine war between Ohio and Michigan she witnessed the destruction of watermelons and corn whisky. The sweat which then flowed and the feathers which were then ruined are known to the old inhabitants of Ohio. Then I was a youth, but I have the recollection of hearing valiant colonels in my own native Muskingum hills addressing the militia drawn up around them in hollow squares, inspiring them to rescue the realm of guine and boop-poles from the grasp of the insatiate Michiganders. The recollection makes my heart tremble. Ah! That was war whose adventures no Cid had dared to celebrate! The passions they engendered even yet vibrate in the corn-stalks of the Maumee valley! A remarkable war! Then soldiers retreated before an enemy not pursuing, and ran through almost impassable swamps guided by the battle fires in their own flaming eyes. The dead and wounded of that war were never counted. Both sides fought for a boundary line and both ran that line with same exactitude and compass. Their lines were both straight. I said I was a boy then; but the tympanum of my ear even now at this distance and age echoes to the rattaplan of that sanguinary war."

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By WILLIAM GAINES

NEW YORK.—The Thanksgiving day parade of Tony Sarg balloons took place as usual, with no evidence of deflation.

In fact, one of the grotesquely decorated bags was a 52-foot affair inflated with helium gas.

This was liberated at the end of the procession down Broadway, to soar into the clouds over Manhattan.

Sarg recently went up in a blimp to determine whether any antagonistic air currents or splinters of silver lining might spell disaster for his balloon masterpiece, and reported all's well.

It has been public knowledge for a long time that Ruth Etting's recurrent bad dream is that of being chased by Chinese. The other day Harry Richman advised her to repeat, each time she is ready for bed, "I don't want any part of Manchuria."

ADVANCE INFORMATION

There came a knock at the door. The cottager opened it.

"Good morning," said the shabbily dressed visitor. "Is it here that you are offering a reward for a lost dog?"

"Yes," said the cottager anxiously. "I'm offering ten shillings. Can it be that you have news of my poor little Fido?"

"No, not yet," he replied. "But as I was just going in search of the dog I thought you might let me have a little something on account."

YOUNG WOMAN, WIFE OF YOUNG EXPERT, TAKES FOURTH HAND IN GAME FOR BRIDGE CHAMPIONSHIP—"THE ELDER STATESMAN" HER OPPONENT

By LORENA A. HICKOK

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—"The elder statesman" some years ago gave a certain young woman named Josephine Murphy her first lesson in the game of bridge—partly, she thinks, "because they thought it would be a good joke to make a bridge expert out of a woman."

Next week she starts on a six weeks' contract bridge match, one woman playing with three men, and, if she and her partner win, it will cost one of her teachers, Sidney S. Lenz, $1,000.

Josephine Murphy is now Mrs. Ely Culbertson, wife of the young man who came charging out of Russia to upset the bridge tables of the U. S. A., and the match is to be the Culbertson system of contract bridge bidding against the Lenz system, with a $5,000 Culbertson wager against a $1,000 wager by Lenz. Six weeks of play, 150 rubbers—no quarter asked or given.

Mrs. Culbertson is going to start it off next Monday evening by giving a dinner party for 25 guests before she sits down to play.

"Oh, that won't be any bother," she said today. "I'll arrange everything right after I get up that morning."

Mrs. Ely Culbertson—tall and slim, with long slender hands, humorous Irish eyes, and red gold boyish bob—knows how to do a lot of things besides playing bridge.

She is rated the best woman player in the world.

She was the late Wilbur Whitehead's assistant—and it was while she was working for Whitehead that Lenz and some of the other experts to whom her husband playfully refers as "the elder statesmen" taught her to play bridge—when she met Ely Culbertson, then a discouraged young Russian Emigre, to whom the thought of earning his living by his favorite pastime had never occurred.

"You're better than you think you are," she told him, married him, and launched him on the career which is to reach its peak next week in the match of Culbertson & Culbertson vs. Lenz and Jacoby.

Bridge is Mrs. Ely Culbertson's business. She has taught hundreds of people how to play the game. She has played herself in so many tournaments that she cannot remember offhand how many.

She writes about bridge, thinks about bridge, lives on bridge—and occasionally plays bridge—"just for fun."

But it's not her favorite pastime. In Mrs. Culbertson's existence there are two things more important than bridge. They are, a small blonde girl named Joyce, "and a sturdy little blond boy, who was christened Ely Bruce Culbertson, but who bears the nickname "Jump-Bid Ely."

Dear Diary

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

SUNDAY NIGHT.

DEAR DIARY: It seemed great fun to Nate—pretending that I was his hostess instead of his guest. It struck me, as he seated me at the head of that long, long table, gleaming with silver and linen, how absurd and almost hopeless I was . . .

Why, Diary, I didn't know the first think about it—not even which fork to use. And there were so many forks and so many little glasses.

I mean, Diary, that it shows that half of the world certainly doesn't know how the other half lives. There has been nothing wrong with my bringing up—but there has been nothing about my life in a small town which would prepare me for Pent House Etiquette.

Back home everything seemed so simple. But here in New York even table manners are puzzling.

'Now, let's pretend that you're the little woman'. Sitting here in all your dutiful dignity at the head of table," he said, as he held the high-backed chair for me.

I smiled and repeated, "Dutiful dignity?"

"Yes," sliding the chair closer to the table and bending over me just a second, "do you think you can manage to look wisely and sufficiently bored?"

He smiled. And I answered: "Sufficiently bored to discourage a husband from repeating his favorite story for the fifteenth time?"

"You have the idea, all right," he walked to his end of the long board.

"We could call this the test of my ability to act, could we?" I said, more serious than he suspected.

"Oh, I don't know. It's only second nature for a woman to portray a wife."

"I mean a good wife—not a bad one, Nate."

"Sometimes I fear, my dear, that there are no good wives in all the world."

"Goodness!" I exclaimed, "I'm afraid I'll have to be myself—it's going to be too difficult taking the part of Your Wife since you've warned me already I'm to work under a handicap."

"How's that?" interested.

"Why, you've just told me you rather believe there are no good wives . . . and surely I don't want to portray a bad one."

"That's according to the usual," he said, a little more seriously than I believe he intended to seem, "they all give a fellow that idea—that they're going to be good . . ."

LIVING AND LOVING

BY VIRGINIA LEE

ONE of my correspondents, a young man, wants me to discuss a marriage in which the girl is older than the boy. He is 23, he says, and is in love with a girl six or seven years older. She loves him, he thinks, but is afraid that if she marries him her friends will "raze" her.

Youthful as he is, this young man, my correspondent, has been married twice, losing both wives by death.

In adolescence, girls do mature earlier than boys. Girls of 18 and boys of the same age show a considerable difference, as a general thing. But when both are more than 21, the difference is not noticeable, and if you compare men and women of 30, 40, or 50, or up, there is no difference at all, or what little there is is apt to be in favor of the "female of the species."

Modern women have been made so beauty conscious that they do not dare grow old. They keep up youthful activities so that their bodies are fit, their minds keen, and many a woman of considerably over 60 could pass for 50 or younger.

So it seems to me ridiculous that a few years' difference in ages should be the cause of two people refraining from marrying if they are otherwise suited. I know a woman who married a man six years her junior. He is a serious, quiet chap who seems older than he is; while she is an enthusiastic person who appears younger, and few, if any, of their friends guess that there is any difference in age.

Of course if your ages are known E. V., your girl friend may expect some razzing from her friends and allusions to "cradle snatchers," but what of it? It would be a small price to pay, it seems to me, in exchange for a happy marriage. Your experiences have doubtless made you older than your years. So if you love this young woman be persistent and you'll win her.

Illinois building expenditures in March were estimated at 107 percent above the figure for the same month in 1930.

ROYAL JEWELS TO BE SOLD FOR WEDDING

Isabella II, on the day of her marriage to the Duc de Galliera, grandson of King Louis Philippe of France.

There is a pearl tiara, regal as a crown and a nine strand pearl and diamond necklace which King Alfonso XII, brother of the Infanta Eulalia, gave to his beautiful young, Maria Mercedes on her wedding day. When she died six months later the king presented them to his sister.

"They're all I have left to give," said Infanta Eulalia. "And I hope they bring happiness to the children. I'm going to divide the results of their sale between the Princess Beatrice and her sister, Marie Christina, who is engaged to my second grandson, Prince Alfonso d'Orleans."

"The Japanese army was bound to take it as a challenge. Army circles already were much aggravated as they felt the army was tricked into a withdrawal a week ago by apparent promises of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang that he agreed in principle, at least, to the evacuation of Chinchow, and now, like a

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The financial markets ended the week with a new wave of cheerfulness today.

The effects of a calmer appraisal of both Democratic and foreign conditions were apparent. The statement of Adolf Hitler, reiterating the German Fascist party's respect for private debts tended to quiet uneasiness over the central European financial outlook.

While week-end surveys reported little change in basic industrial conditions at home, signs of a distinct improvement in retail trade, with the approach of the holiday season, appeared to have stimulated business sentiment.

Share prices surged up about 1 to 4 points for many prominent issues. In bonds, foreigners, notably Germans and domestic rails, attracted new buying.

In stocks, recoveries of 2 to 4 points were registered in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, American Can, Eastman, Allied Chemical, Chesapeake and Ohio, New Haven, Union Pacific, and Santa Fe.

Issues up a point or more included General Motors, General Electric, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, American Smelting, Borden, General Foods, and others.

Sales for the two-hour session approximated 80,000 shares.

Wall street is expectantly awaiting the president's message to congress next week, and the announcement of the Dec. 15 government financing, which bankers understand may appear Monday.

CHAPTER 46

THIS little arrangement so skillfully engineered by Eleanor Durand and Mrs. Morse was causing not a little trouble already. The next most logical place for it to be the cause of a scene besides the Durand residence was the Morse family circle. Mrs. Morse had broken the news to Sybil the night before so that the shock would not prove fatal to her when she saw her picture in the paper.

Sybil had received the news almost hysterically. Her mother could scarcely believe she was the child whom she had mollycoddled all these years, and who had accepted her word as final.

"But mother," Sybil exclaimed, in a horrified tone, "you can't do anything like that. Not after what I told you Bruce isn't even interested in me. Why, he didn't even as much as mention anything like an engagement to me."

Her mother took Sybil's hands firmly into her own.

"Sometimes," she said, as though she were speaking to a ten-year-old child, "children like Bruce do not know what they want. Sometimes it is better for them to have things decided for them."

Sybil broke away from her. "But you can't do anything like this, mother. Bruce won't stand for it. I know. And even if he would, I wouldn't."

Her mother stared at her. "Are you crazy, Sybil?" she demanded sternly. "Do you mean that you would turn down a perfectly good chance to marry Bruce Durand?"

Sybil nodded. "I mean just that."

Her mother took hold of her shoulders and shook her just a little.

"After all I've done to try to find someone to marry you," she said dispassionately, "you stand there and tell me that you won't marry Bruce Durand?"

Sybil lowered her eyes. She was embarrassed and hurt. She wished that she had the courage to run away. She dreaded feeling that she was being a burden to her family and that was exactly the way her mother was making her feel.

"I don't see how you can ask me to do a thing like that, mother," Sybil protested. "Honestly, I don't. Neither of us, forced into a marriage, would be happy. I should think you would understand that."

"You love Bruce, don't you?" Her mother's voice was low.

Sybil knew that her mother was aware of the fact that Bruce was her choice. But Sybil wouldn't play the fool—even for her mother—any more. Now that this absurd arrangement had been made she had begun to realize that her mother had done many other things that had been foolish.

For instance, the time that her mother insisted on Polly Dunn coming out with her from New Hampshire during the holidays. Polly had not been a close friend of Sybil's. She tried to make her mother understand that. But the Duns were prominent socially in the east and Polly had a brother who was eligible material for marriage. Mrs. Morse, therefore, brought Polly out for the holidays. The result had been a disappointment all the way around.

Sybil saw through some of these things now. Her mother was meddling, too eager to manage the lives of others. Sybil wondered, as she stood there, so obviously opposing her mother, why she hadn't observed prior to this that her mother had been the guiding hand that had so misguided her down through the years.

Sybil felt, suddenly a spirit of resentment toward this woman who had just finished saying that she had "found someone to marry her." She didn't need anyone to do that. There wasn't anything wrong with her. If her folk merely let her alone
